Connecting with Will Shakespeare

Some of the drama students from River City High School have been participating in the "Mondavi/UC Davis Globe Educators Academy," with some workshops and lectures overseen by experts from London's famed Globe Theater.

These and other students will perform "scenes and monologues" from Shakespeare at 7 p.m. at the Yolo High auditorium on Westacre Road.

Tickets are $3; one-night only.

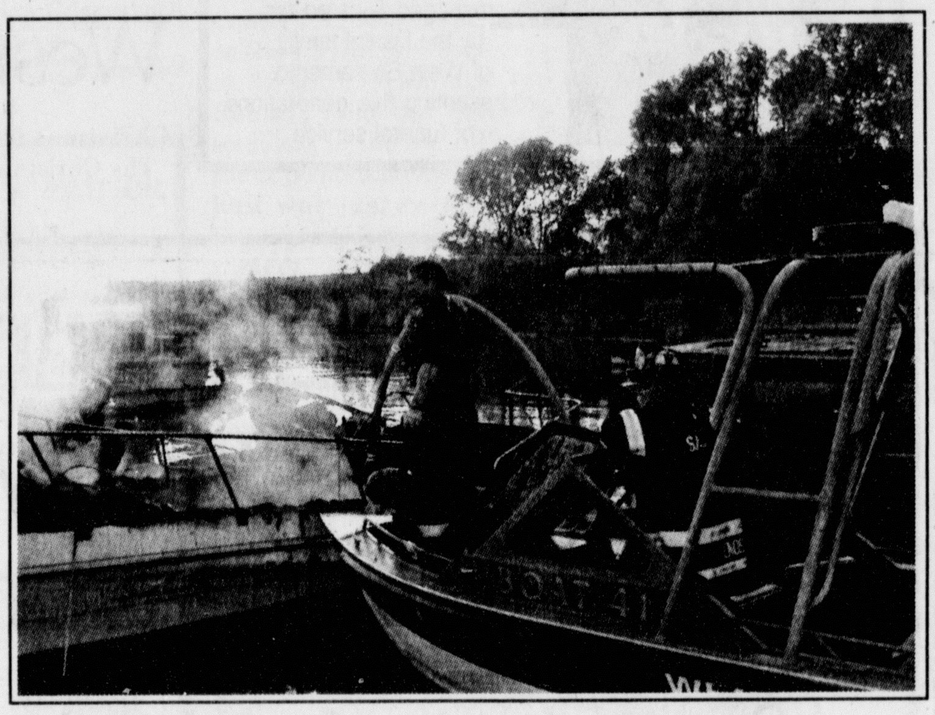
Buy a poppy, support a vet or vet's family

Members of Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) Post 8762 and its Ladies Auxiliary will be distributing Buddy Poppies in front of the West Sacramento Nugget and Raley's stores from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. on November 9th and 10th. According to Post Commander Gary Reason, VFW by-laws state that the proceeds from Buddy Poppy distributions must be used to benefit disabled and needy veterans and the widows and orphans of deceased veterans.

"What better way to help our veterans in the community than by distributing this little flower of remembrance," said Reason. "We encourage everyone in town to stop by Raley's or Nugget stores and get a Poppy, and wear it proudly to help honor the memory of those who have made the ultimate sacrifice."

Poppies are assembled by disabled or hospitalized veterans. VFW and Ladies Auxiliary members throughout the country raise more than $15 million annually from their distribution.

Injured in blast



An explosion in a boat on Friday sent a man to the hospital with second-degree burns to his face. Firefighters (right) fought the blaze, which occurred at about 5:30 p.m. at the Sherwood Harbor Marina and RV Park along South River Road in West Sacramento.

The fire sent a plume of black smoke about 400 feet into the sky, reports the West Sacramento Fire Department.

Westmore Oaks may pick up & move

And the name planned for brand-new high school may please those who love tradition

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Plans are still simmering for campus switches in the Washington Unified School District.

Schools superintendent Steven Lawrence confirmed last week that WUSD is considering moving the Westmore Oaks Elementary School student body to part of the current River City High School campus (which is slated to be replaced by a new campus). The idea developed as district officials pondered how to convert Westmore Oaks from a kindergarten-through-sixth grade facility to a larger kindergarten-through-eighth grade school.

Westmore Oaks is located near Park Blvd. and Fallbrook; River City is nearby.

"As we went through the design process for Westmore Oaks, we considered those large 'heritage' oak trees," Lawrence told the News-Ledger. "The place where the heritage oaks are is in back, where we were looking to put in the gymnasium and new classrooms."

The presence of the trees didn't completely shoot down the planned expansion, he said. But it did create a problem.

"We've done some arborist studies, and it looks like there are ways (to build around them)," Lawrence commented, adding that keeping the trees alive might not be guaranteed.

"But when we met with faculty and staff and showed them the designs, the consensus was that having a campus there with 900 students would be tight. The staff came to a consensus that they would like a better plan. This is our one chance to do it and do it correctly."

Lawrence said that even now, the school has a congestion problem when parents pick up and drop off their kids. The problem would be worse if the school grows to a K-8.

"The thought is we'd move Westmore Oaks to the high school, and the new charter school would go to (the current) Westmore Oaks."

As Westmore Oaks moved to the current RCHS site, it would join a planned vocational training center. Replacing the elementary school at the "old" Westmore Oaks site would be a smaller charter school – the district's new "early college preparation" academy.

The plans are still being explored, said Lawrence.

In other district news, it seems that WUSD has settled on a name for the campus being built to replace River City High School, and that name will be. . . River City High School.

"We're just transferring all the kids over, so it made sense to keep the name," Lawrence commented. "We did surveys of the students and so forth. A majority of the students said 'keep the name.'"

Lawrence said the new name is not "official" yet. The school board hasn't approved it.

A school board meeting last year to talk about whether to give the new facility a different name drew a large crowd of vocal RCHS students and parents. Most of them vehemently opposed separating the old campus from its replacement through a name change.

Julian Drive man killed by train

A 25-year old West Sacramento was found dead early October 14 after he was apparently struck by a train. The accident occurred at about 4:40 a.m. along train tracks near Sacramento Avenue and 8th Street.

"That time of the morning, the only possible witnesses were the people on the train," reported Lieutenant Derek Brummett of the West Sacramento Police Department. "They heard the sound from the side of the train, and stopped to take a look."

Jonathan Edward Schachman, a 35-year old resident of Julian Drive, was found killed.

"Evidently, he wasn't walking in front of the train, but he was walking close enough to get hit," Brummett told the News-Ledger.

He added that the Yolo County Coroner's office was performing toxicology tests to help determine why the accident cccurred.

NEWS-LEDGER EDITORIAL:

Opinion on Measure S

One of the differences between this school bond and the last one is that on this one, there are excellent points on both sides of this debate, in nearly equal measure. The last time around, West Sacramento had little choice but to approve a long-overdue school bond to build a new high school. So it did.

But this time?

The new school bond aims to pay for a program already started by the Washington Unified School District: converting local elementary schools so they can absorb seventh and eighth grade students. The bond also intends to pay for a performing arts theater at the new high school campus, and to upgrade lab, media and other facilities pretty much all over the district. (If you want the public to approve a school bond, you'd better offer a little something for everybody and every campus.)

The conversion to "K-8" schools will cost money even after all the construction bills are paid. Decentralizing the middle school programs (like science labs) isn't as cheap as keeping them all in one place. Yet the current system of sending kids to K-6 schools and then to Golden State Middle School won't work much longer as the district grows. In fact, it's not working very well right now: test scores are not high at GSMS, and for various reasons, an unknown number of families are opting out of the district when their kids reach middle-school age.

These are some of problems that WUSD aims to address through the new "neighborhood" K-8 schools. For better or worse, the school administration (backed by a seeming majority of parents) has opted to create a district of K-8 campuses.

The cost of this new bond, from your pocketbook, is about $33 per year for each $100,000 of property value you own.

You can argue that other choices should have been examined before we got to this point and to this bond measure. You would have a point. But this is the direction chosen by the school board you elected and the administrators you hired. And voters need to ask themselves what will happen if this bond fails: will the district come up with a better and cheaper plan than this, in a timely fashion?

The hard fact is that, whatever chain of events brought West Sacramento to this new school bond, it is a bond that needs to pass. And it probably will pass, since Measure S needs a "yes" from only 55 percent of Tuesday's voter turnout (instead of the old "two-thirds" rule for bonds).

If "S" does pass, one imperative is that local school district officials realize that this ballot measure is not a compliment or a mandate or a blank check. Many voters remain legitimately concerned about district cost controls and financial sustainability. Many are demanding educational changes that demonstrably improve education. Many will oppose Measure S, and even those voters who support it will be hard-pressed to support another school bond anytime in the near future. So the district needs an attitude adjustment.

But as for the immediate question of "yes" or "no" on Measure S, the answer is it's time to pull together. Vote yes.

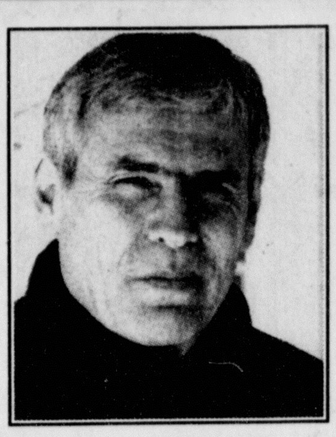
Halloween just isn't the same anymore

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

Last Friday night, my 20-year old son strolled out of his bedroom and scared me half-to-death.

"Why in the world are you dressed like that?" I demanded to know, pointing to the fact that he was covered from head-to-toe in some kind of other-worldly black costume, including a full head mask which only allowed me to see his eyes. In addition, he had a gigantic sword strapped to his side.

"I'm going to a Halloween party with some of my friends," came the explanation. "You have heard of Halloween, haven't you?"

"Yes, but just what are you supposed to be?"

"I'm a ninja."

"I see. Well, then I guess my next question is -- what is a ninja?"

"You've never heard of ninjas?"

"I've heard of ninja turtles, but you certainly don't look like a turtle."

"Well," reluctantly explained my son, "FYI, a ninja is a Japanese spy or assassin, you know, like a samurai warrior, only more sneaky."

"You know," I said, "that really doesn't help me all that much."

"Look, Dad, I really don't have time to bring you into the 21st century tonight -- I'm already late for the party."

"Who else is going to this party?"

"All my friends."

"Is Anthony (my son's best friend, who lives next door) going?

"Sure."

"And what he is going as?"

"I think he said he was going to be the Terminator. You do know who the Terminator is, right?"

"Governor Schwartzenegger?"

"Close enough."

"So, is everyone at this party going to look like they want to tear limbs -- or slice them -- off of human bodies?"

"Pretty much."

"But why don't you just go as Davey Crockett or something?"

"Davey Crockett?"

"You know, the guy with the coonskin hat?"

"Coonskin hat?"

"Never mind."

"See you later."

"One more thing. You're not going to be driving all around town looking like that, are you?"

"No. Why?"

"Well, because although you say you look just like a ninja -- whatever that is -- to me you look like a jihadist -- and I don't want the police shooting first and asking questions later if they happen to see you near any important buildings or bridges."

"Can I go now?"

"What time will you be home?"

"When I can't find anymore limbs to hack off."

Anyway, after my son left for his party, I couldn't help but think how much Halloween has changed over the years. Instead of the emphasis being placed on sweet little kids happily running through friendly neighborhoods trick-or-treating, now it seems like most of the fun is being had by costumed teenagers and adults at private Halloween parties. But way back when I was young, the blocks in my West Sacramento neighborhood were overflowing with young ghosts and goblins once the sun had gone down. My parents always expected at least 250 kids to knock on our Michigan Boulevard door, and that was usually a conservative estimate. Plus, unlike today, it was considered almost un-American for adults to turn off their lights and pretend they weren't at home, so my entire neighborhood was always lit up and almost every house had wonderful Halloween decorations of one sort or another on display. And also unlike today, we didn't just go to a few houses where we knew the people and could count on getting safe and properly packages treats. No, without a worry in my head, I would fly from door to door as fast as my little legs would carry me until my gigantic pillow case was so full of candy and other assorted goodies that I could simply no longer drag it another inch.

"So," I said to my son when he finally returned from his party, "how did things go?"

"Why are you still up so late?"

"It's my job -- waiting up for kids to come home."

"You've just been sitting in that chair waiting for me?"

"Well, no, I was actually having myself a good think -- you know, thinking back on how much fun Halloween was when I was a kid -- and when you and your brothers and sister were young. Do you remember the time when....."

"Look, Dad, I'm really not in the mood to take a stroll down memory lane tonight -- I lost my cell phone at the party. This stupid ninja outfit only has this one small pocket, and I guess my cell phone fell out of it. It was brand new, too."

"Well, then let that be a little lesson to you."

"A little lesson?"

"If you had gone as Davey Crockett, this would have never happened."

"And why is that?"

"Because Davey Crockett had really big pockets in his buckskin pants."

"Goodnight, Dad."

The Boston Red Sox swept through the Colorado Rockies like a cold winter storm to claim their second World Series Trophy in four years. The Red Sox used a combination of good pitching and old fashion hitting to out score the Rockies 29-10 on route to their four game sweep of the Rocky Mountain boys.

The Rockies needed to win 21 of their last 22 games to reach the October Classic but their amazing winning streak went cold with their nine day layoff. So here we are 13 days after putting together the winning streak of a life time, the Rockies, whose total payroll is only $54 million, are done for the season.

Speaking of payroll, the New York Yankees tried to steal the Red Sox thunder in the media by announcing millionaire, Alex Rodriguez won't be back next season and by offering their prestigious manager job to Joe Girardi while the city of Boston plans their victory parade. You think they might wait a day to let the Red Sox enjoy the moment?

Another rumor has ex-Yankee manager, Joe Torre, is packing up his assistant coach Don Mattingly and heading to the West coast to straighten out the Dodgers' mess while A-Rod entertains offers from the Dodgers, Giants, Angels and anybody else that will mortgage their farm to win the next World Series Trophy!

On defense the Raiders dominated the Cougars as Turner returned a fumble 64 yards for another score and Alex Maldonado returned another fumble 30 yards for a score. The Raiders improved their overall record to 5 wins with only 3 loses and their league record to 2 and 1 to sit in a tie with Rio Linda for 2nd place in league play.

In the junior varsity contest earlier in the evening, the Center J.V. Cougars pounced on the J.V. Raiders by a score of 32 to 6. Although the Raiders held the Cougars scoreless in the second have the 32 points scored in the first half was just to much to overcome for the young raiders. Next weeks game against the J.V. SPORTS from p. 3 looks like their season in going to be full of tricks or treats. The trick for the Kings is to try and win a few games without Ron Artest, who will be sitting out his eight game suspensions for his arrest last year for the wife incident, and the 10-week absence of Mike Bibby with a torn ligament in his left thumb.

The treat will be watching first year coach, Reggie Theus, tackle a few of his new challenges by coaching his roster that includes a mixture of dysfunctional over paid players and the Kings new group of untested rookies. Unfortunately, the loss of Bibby for two months will be his biggest trick to overcome this season.

The Kings will return to the Arco after a three game road trip for their first home game on Tuesday (7 p.m.) night followed by a visit from Lebron James and the Cavaliers on an ESPN (7:30 p.m.) Friday night game.

NFL Week 9

The 49ers (2-5) let the Saints march right through their defense scoring at will in their 31-10 loss to extend their losing streak to five games. Alex Smith, who returned to the lineup after sitting out three weeks with a separated shoulder, was ineffective most of the game as the Niners offensive was null and void. The Niners offensive better show up next Sunday (10 a.m.) in Atlanta or their season will be null and void!

Speaking of null, the Raiders (2-5) lost 13-9 to the Titans in a battle of field goals last week in Tennessee as their offense struggled to muster up any kind of offensive. The Raiders, who had 14 penalties for 100 yards and were sacked 5 times, need to improve their overall team focus and concentration if they want to win at home next Sunday against Houston (1:15 p.m.).

Aztecs Picks

The dawg had another mediocre week (3-2) and is back on track with his college pick of the week but the NFL games continue to hound him! This week Aztec's going with his cousins, the Georgia Bulldogs (-14 ½) as this "College Lick of the Week" and in the NFL the dawg is betting his horses on the Colts (+3 ½) at home against the Pats, the Chargers (NL) will win in Minnesota while the Saints (-3) continue to march in New Orleans against the Jags. On Monday night the Steelers (-7) will hammer the disgruntled Ravens.

Enjoy your day – see ya next week!

Removing Wallpaper

Q: The dining room and kitchen of the house we recently purchased have dingy, faded wallpaper in place. What's the best way to remove this so that we can paint the walls? — Kara G., Portland, Maine

A: Wallpaper removal, even at the best of times, is a time-consuming, exhausting, dusty, dirty job. It can also be somewhat exhilarating as you rip paper from the walls, but this comes in small doses. I'm just preparing you for the job — because removing the old wallpaper and repainting the walls is ultimately worth the effort.

You'll need a putty knife, wallpaper scraper, wallpaper scorer, a spray bottle filled with mild soapy water, dropcloths, sponges, a scouring pad and coarse sandpaper. A dust mask, hat and gloves should be worn. Depending on the difficulty involved in removing the wallpaper and glue beneath, you may need to rent a wallpaper steamer. Wallpaper-removing solution is also available, but this is a somewhat caustic product that generates lots of fumes, requiring a respirator mask, eye and skin protection, so consider it a worst-case-scenario item.

After clearing out furniture and putting down dropcloths, test the wallpaper by selecting a loose corner and gently pulling away from the wall. Encourage the paper along by running the putty knife or scraper between the paper and wall.

Older paper tends to peel away and leave the backing and glue behind. And such glue is often practically petrified. To make removal easier, spray soap-and-water solution on the surface of the wallpaper and let it soak for a few minutes before peeling. If the wet spray doesn't work, use the rental steamer (careful, as it's very hot) to soften the backing and glue. Scrape away softened material with the putty knife; attack stubborn backing blobs with coarse sandpaper.

home tip

Before painting a wall, sand the surface with fine-grit sandpaper to create a slightly rough surface to which the paint will adhere.

As I said, wallpaper removal is a tough job. Do the work in batches, allotting a certain amount of time to the job each day. If you're tired or hurried, the walls may not be cleaned properly, and that will show up under the paint.

• To create a self-watering area for potted plants while you're on vacation, set plants in the bathtub or in a kiddie pool and use a length of cotton rope to wick water from the bathtub to the plant's roots. You can either stick it up the holes in the bottom of the pot or dig it down a few inches into the soil. This should get you by for a week or so.

Dear Readers: When I was a little girl, every New Year's Eve night saw my brother and I scurrying around the house, placing pennies on each windowsill and doorjamb. I don't know where the tradition comes from, but it's to ensure that the house and those in it will always have money for things they need, or at least that's how my mother explained it. I now watch my daughter scurrying around the house on New Year's Eve, ensuring our family's fortunes for another year. It's tradition.

Does your family share a wonderful tradition for the holidays? I'd love to hear them and share them with other readers. Send your family traditions to: Traditions/Here's a Tip, c/o King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando FL 32853-6475; or e-mail to heresatip@yahoo.com.

LADY RESIDENT OF WASHINGTON FOR 20 YEARS AT REST

Last Friday, December 6th, Mrs. Lena Reynolds died at the White Hospital in Sacramento after a sickness lasting over a period of several weeks during which she was afflicted with heart disease.

Last Monday her funeral took place at East Lawn, where the remains were cremated with many relatives and friends present to mourn her loss.

Mrs. Roynolds was an estimable lady who had made her home in Washington for over twenty years but who had been living in Vallejo during the past six months.

She was particularly attentive to her home, always caring for it first and seldom or never interfering in the affairs of neighbors or relatives.

She belonged to no particular church but seldom failed to attend some place of worship on every Sunday of the year.

She will be mourned by hundreds of friends in Washington who learned to love her for her good qualities of womanhood, and although she left no children, she was a favorite with every child in her neighborhood.

Mrs. Reynolds is survived by her husband, C. V. Reynolds, a ship builder, who will likely make his future home in Washington.

WILLARD PANKOST A BENEDICT

On December 1st, in Oakland, Willard Pankost was married to Miss Lola Strader, a former resident of Sacramento and an estimable young lady with many splendid qualifications.

During the past fourteen months, Pankost has been a member of Uncle Sam's Navy, first being located in New York State and lately in San Francisco. He is a son of S. P. Pankost of Washington and was born and raised in this locality.

Home on a month's furlough the young couple decided to wed and on December 1st proceeded to accomplish their plan.

In a few days Willard expects to be honorably discharged from the navy, after which the young couple will make their permanent home in Washington.

has been filed for probate in Woodland by Mrs. J. Lindsay. The provisions of the will allow Mrs. Lottie Brisbin of Napa, $5; Mrs. J. Lindsay, $200; the balance of the estate to be divided equally between Mrs. Lindsay, C. C. Soule and John G. Soule. The estimated value of the estate is about $3,000.

Red Cross pledges are rather slow in maturing and members of the local chapter are working earnestly to get them completed before the end of the year. From this date on, one of the Red Cross workers will be at the postoffice from one to three to take up these pledges. Following the S. P. pay-car two members will be at the postoffice on December 14th and 16th.

BUCKINGHAM WILL HAVE CABINET OF OFFICIAL ADVISORS

On the first Monday in January, Henry Buckingham will officially take over the position of Constable of Washington Township to which he was elected at the primaries, on August 27th.

He has already filed his bond and has surrounded himself with a number of volunteers who propose to help him in the official conduct of the office.

Washington being the only wet section of Yolo County there are few arrests for blind-pigging, immorality and other such despicable crimes, hence he does not expect a strenuous life in his new position.

But those volunteers who propose to help him have formed themselves into a cabinet, so that Buckingham may be fully advised as to what steps he should take in each and every particular.

To these positions "Nig" Newell has been elected bailiff; Pete Van Olinda, desk sergeant, and Dave Crowe, city detective.

One of the strenuous rules of the volunteers is that court must be called at 10 a. m. every morning when necessary and that any one of the cabinet late at the hour of opening must pay for soda for the crowd.

It is possible that the cabinet will be extended to include some other notable characters about town later on.

VIRULENT DIPHTHERIA CAUSED DEATH OF BARNEY BARBERO

Last Friday Barney Barbero died at the Caffero home on Third street, following a few days of illness, during which he was seriously afflicted with what is generally known as "black" diphtheria.

Owing to the virulent character of the disease, friends were not permitted to view his remains and every precaution was taken by the health officers to prevent contagion.

Barbero had been a resident of Washington for several years until about six months ago when he went to San Francisco fo work in the Union Iron Works. Desiring to spend Thanksgiving with old friends, he came to Washington for a few days, where he was taken down.

He was a member of the Volunteer Fire Department, a popular young fellow, and his death is regretted by hundreds of intimate friends and young men about town.

It is reported that the Kaiser did not want war but that he was forced into it by the militarists of Germany.

If he were only given a chance to mend his ways, the experience he learned might be of great benefit to him.

Yolo Independent is the home paper for 4,000 people.

TOWN FLAG NOT SHOWN FOR CHARLIE MAINS

The first young man from Washington to lose his life in actual conflict in the great European struggle has been neglected in the fact that since his death was announced the flag on the Town Hall has not been placed at half-mast nor even has it been shown on the flag-staff of the building.

Neither has the service flag of the town been shown in its accustomed place since the announcement of Mains' death was made.

Many of the young men around town who knew Mains well and who knew how sincerely he endeavored to do his share for his country, regret that this mark of respect has been lacking in his particular case when on previous occasions a great display was made for the other young men of the town who gave all they had but were not actually engaged in the conflict.

The Town Hall flag has caused considerable bickering.

It is now in the possession of Mrs. Wm. Wilson, into whose custody it was given by the Improvement Club several months ago, but who received instructions at that time to turn it over to the trustees of the Fire Department on demand.

Evidently there is a case of neglect here that should be followed up, for the trustees claim they are too anxious to secure the flag for the display necessary.

Citizens around town yesterday voluntarily offered to purchase a new flag for the Town Hall, if the Improvement Club emblem cannot be secured for display.

HOWARD H. LEE HAS PURCHASED CONRAD'S STORE

Howard H. Lee became the proprietor of the Conrad store in Riverbank yesterday when he purchased from Mrs. Ofa Conrad her interest in the business.

Mrs. Conrad has conducted the place of business for several years but lately decided to retire from it to engage in a different line.

Howard Lee is well known in this locality, being the son of Homer Lee of Washington.

During several years he has been engaged at the Mohr & Yoerk store in Sacramento and is thoroughly acquainted with the grocery business.

He will reside over the store premises with his family.

Mrs. Conrad will make her residence in Washington.

A Philadelphia judge from the bench a few days ago remarked: "Punishment is not vengeance, but prisoners should not be treated so well that they might want to return. Their punishment should act as a warning to others to do right and keep out of jail."

All of which is very true but evidently receives little attention from the State Prison Directors of California.

A State official repudiated a bill of $22 the other day which he owed a cigar merchant lost in a 26 game.

He took advantage of the technicality but that lays him all the more liable, for if credit is good to any man, the official lost more than $22 in reputation.

REV. FATHER ELLIS WILL BE PASTOR IN CATHOLIC CHURCHES HERE

By appointment of Rt. Rev. Bishop Grace, Father John H. Ellis will take charge of the Catholic churches in Washington District, on and after the second Sunday in January.

The appointment was made a few days ago but until it becomes effective, the local church will be served by Rev. Fr. Horgan of Woodland and his assistant.

Bishop Grace has recognized the necessity of a regular pastor for this district and has commissioned Father Ellis to do the pioneer work in this particular.

To say that he is amply qualified to do the necessary work is placing it mildly, for Father Ellis has had considerable experience at the Cathedral Parish in Sacramento, as well as other towns throughout the State.

Speaking to The Independent, Father Ellis said the other day:

"The increasing population in Washington, Riverbank and West Sacramento demands the constant attention of a resident priest. On assuming charge of the parish it will be my purpose to say Mass every Sunday in Washington and every other Sunday in Riverbank or West Sacramento, alternately.

"Soon after assuming charge I am going to ask all the Catholics of the district to meet at some convenient point so that a home can be secured for a priest. Steps leading to this will no doubt be welcomed by those wishing to attend their duties regularly and keep in touch with their religion like true Catholics.

"A Sunday School will also be started at one central point or at the different churches."

Sacramento firemen will soon be enjoying the benefits of the two-platoon system.

They deserve it.

Letters to the Editor

Editor's note: many of the letters below have been reduced in length, partly due to available space and to our policy of not allowing last-minute political criticisms on election issues in the News-Ledger in the week prior to an election. West Sacramento faces a ballot on Tuesday, including issues such as the "Measure S" school bond. It would be unfair to allow new, last-minute criticisms of those involved in campaign issues if they do not have a chance to respond before the election.

Gang worries

I attended a Westfield neighborhood meeting sponsored by the police department. The police chief and his staff did an excellent job explaining various police and neighborhood interactions.

One of the presentations was about gang activity. Namely, the "Broderick Boys", and the attempted injunction against their activities in certain areas of the city. The key phrase is "certain areas of the city", shown on a presentation map as the old Broderick, Bryte and Westfield areas of the city. I don't know what was used as a reason or evidence for the police department to single out these areas as either high gang activity or high gang related crime areas.

The evidence of high gang crime would have to be pretty good in order to justify the publication of these areas as high unlawful gang activity and high gang related crime areas. If the police department is trying to promote job security they should find some other method rather than leaving the city open for individual and/or class action lawsuits due to lower property values and slower sales after being labeled a neighborhood with high gang activity/gang related crime by the police department. This also does not help the image of West Sacramento.

Yes on 'S'

I am writing to urge every member of our community to support our vision for excellent schools by voting Yes on Measure S, a district-wide effort to enhance and upgrade all of our schools. Measure S will provide the children of West Sacramento with the safest and most powerful learning environments necessary for a quality education.

As a board member, I believe the most significant change that has occurred in our schools over the course of this past year, is that our community has raised the bar for our schools by demanding higher expectations of our schools. Our number one focus at the district level has been to continuously improve student achievement, recognizing that it takes additional resources, higher standards, and greater community involvement to truly become excellent schools.

This is why our school board, administration, teachers and staff, along with parents and neighbors, help put Measure S on the ballot. Building better school facilities and science labs, using new and advanced computer systems and technologies, enhancing our career and technical education programs, and providing safe neighborhood schools...these are all things that Measure S will help pay for – and these are all essential components that will help us create premier schools that will inspire pride, as we strive to become a premier city!

As residents of this community, it is our collective responsibility to ensure that all our children succeed and we must hold ourselves and our schools accountable for their success. Countless members of our community have been working hard, alongside us, to help us inform residents about the importance of Measure S and about the power of staying involved in our schools in order to support our most precious asset: our children.

Each of us has the power to help bring about positive change in our schools. By voting Yes on Measure S, we are proving that we have faith in our schools and are willing to invest and make a difference in our children's education. I urge you to please join us in this critical effort to bring excellence to our schools.

Please "Say Yes to West Sacramento Schools!."

Support Measure S

I am a teacher at River City High School, as well as a West Sacramento resident, and I support Measure S.

In the last couple of years, there has been a total turnover in the school board and top administration. These new leaders are making their collective presence felt, and though I certainly do not agree with everything they are doing, I am impressed by the boldness and imagination of the changes and reforms they are spearheading.

The new high school is probably the most impressive of their efforts, if only for the scale its effect will have on the community. The new school is costing more than what was originally planned, and there are two main reasons for this. The first is the global shortage of construction materials. Needless to say, this is something that no one in the school district has any control over. The second is the decisions made in the early days of its planning. The overall programmatic and design elements of the school were not carefully thought out at that time, and the consequences have cascaded to the present. It is important to reiterate that every one of the individuals involved in those decisions no longer has any association with WUSD.

When the new district leadership came on board in 2006, it was unclear how the new high school could be built with the funds available for its construction. With much effort the district did figure out a way, and the results of their efforts can be seen at the corner of Jefferson and Linden. Yes, the administration decided not to build a classroom building, and delayed the construction of the theater. On the other hand, next fall there will be a fully functioning high school, built with money that will not come out of the district's general fund (which pays for the day-to-day operation of the schools, including my salary) or with Measure S funds.

Another flash point is the coming closure of Golden State Middle School and the conversion of the district to K-8. Golden State deserves special mention, because of how poorly it currently serves the children of West Sacramento. Test scores have suffered for many years and the school is one year away from a state take over. Only 20% of students who graduate from Golden State perform at grade level. I can personally tell you the effect this has on programs at the high school when these students enter ninth grade. Irrespective of anything the district may or may not do, this situation has to be addressed, and addressing it will cost money. The choice is to change things now or wait and let the state dictate the changes.

It is no surprise that parents do not want to send their children to Golden State, and hundreds of West Sacramento children now find themselves attending private school or public schools in the surrounding districts. This costs the district considerable money — millions of dollars per year — since much of the funding the district receives from the state is based upon attendance. There may be elements of race in parents' decisions, but something tells me that if Golden State had high test scores and showed strong evidence of student achievement then most of the students who attend schools elsewhere would be attending Golden State.

Establishing K-8 schools district-wide is one approach to the Golden State problem, and is supported by the majority of parents who responded to district surveys on the issue. Having middle school students attending small schools within schools in their neighborhood will probably in and of itself improve student achievement, but the district is not stopping there. There are extensive programmatic changes being planned and being implemented district-wide to address student achievement. As a high school teacher I hope to play some small role in this process. This effort will take many years and will be ongoing. Measure S will accelerate this work.

The bottom line is this: the children in West Sacramento deserve the best we can give them. The district is working very hard to provide this, and Measure S is a step in the right direction. It merits our support.

Vote 'yes' on S

I grew up in Broderick and Bryte listening to stories of Washington vs. Marshall. I lived on Bryte and Carrie Streets. I was a latchkey kid at 8 years old, and by the time I was 12, I was helping to pay rent. My husband and I have three children. Two attend West Sacramento schools. Like any parent, I am voting Yes on Measure S to make sure that my children have it better than I did.

I was a member of the original K-8 task force and reconvened with the curriculum council. I've been a PTA Executive Board member, Safety Committee Head, Boundaries Committee member, Architecture Committee member, Room Parent, and Team Mom (just to name a few). I've attended countless school related public forums and meetings. I've seen the ground work that has been done and I am willing to vote Yes on S because of it.

I encourage you to read your ballot pamphlet. Included on the List of Projects is a vocational program. With our current high school drop out rate in the 30 percentile, I support the type of options that Measure S will bring. Accountability Requirements include; an annual independent performance

The idea of Go Figure is to arrive at the figures given at the bottom and right-hand columns of the diagram by following the arithmetic signs in the order they are given (that is, from left to right and top to bottom). Use only the numbers below the diagram to complete its blank squares and use each of the nine numbers only once.

"30 Days of Night"

Running time: 1 hour 53 minutes
MPAA rating: R

A few months ago, I first got wind of "30 Days of Night" and thought, "Man, what a great idea for a horror movie!" Imagine you were a vampire. What would be your ideal situation? "30 Days of Night" answers that question.

The setting is Barrow, Alaska, the northernmost point in the United States, which (according to the film) is dark for 30 straight days. (Of course, the real Barrow gets a couple months' worth of darkness, but let's not quibble.)

A group of vampires takes advantage of this remarkable situation in order to feed off the entire population of 152, then use the oil from the pipeline to burn down the entire town to destroy any evidence that vampires exist.

Great premise, no? And for the first, oh, 45 minutes, the movie totally delivers on your expectations: Great suspense, creepy characters, some pretty good gore. You know, all the stuff that makes a B-movie great.

Then ... well, things pretty much fall apart. The pace slows down; you have no sense of time. And that's the big problem.

The movie takes place over the span of a month, but it looks like 90 percent of the town gets eaten up within the first 15 minutes of the vampire invasion. So, after a while you gotta ask yourself: If there are only four people left in the town, why are all these vampires sticking around? The food's all gone.

That's the danger of letting a movie slow down. The audience gets time to notice how stupid the movie really is. Speaking of stupid, Josh Hartnett's in it. The girls think he's dreamy. I think his eyebrows are a quarter-inch away from being more interesting than he is.

I can't totally recommend "30 Days of Night." Except for an interesting premise, the film doesn't really break any new ground cinematically or horror-wise. It's like a low-rent "28 Weeks Later." It's definitely a rental.

Jill Jackson's HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD ... Benecio Del Toro has been making the talk-show rounds, plugging his latest film, "Things We Lost in the Fire" with Halle Berry. Lotta ladies think he's the sexiest actor on the screen today. Not so this lady. George Clooney is still the one I would chase. But, back to Benecio. He is certainly attractive, a nice guy and a good actor. He was born in Puerto Rico, grew up in Pennsylvania and chose the University of California at San Diego for his college education. He then studied acting at the Stella Adler Conservatory. The rest of his family are lawyers.

Benecio Del Toro

Did you know Meryl Streep has received more Academy Award nominations than any other actor? Tis true. And there's another gala tribute to her set for April. The Film Society of Lincoln Center will show film clips from all her movies, presented by every big star in the business. Through it all Meryl has maintained a marriage and mothered four children. She has said, "My kids haven't seen most of my movies. Too upsetting. Mommy dies."

Matt Dillon's next is "Cadillac Records," the story of the rise and fall of the company that launched the careers of Etta James, Muddy Waters, Chuck Berry and many other musical names. He also has several other films out there, e.g. "Nothing But the Best" with Kate Beckinsale, and "Old Dogs" with Robin Williams and John Travolta. To Pat G. of Biloxi, Miss.: I hope this answers your question about Dillon doings.

Come Dec. 5 you can see the American Cinematheque Tribute to Julia Roberts on AMC. It was a gala event with Julia proclaiming marriage and motherhood above all else, and asking if there were any hungry babies in the audience. Then displaying her ample chest from feeding her own.

Seems there is some kind of award for everyone in the biz. John Cusack took home the "Star of the Year" award from Show East 2007. This for "his body of work spanning more than two decades." Of course, you know his sister is actress Joan Cusack, and he was known to jokingly say, "I was a teen actor. That's disgusting enough." (Which I don't quite understand, but if he said it — so be it.)

Love affairs and marriages have often started on a film. Humphrey Bogart and Lauren Bacall fell in love while shooting "To Have and Have Not"; Barbra Streisand and Omar Sharif had a love affair after "Funny Girl"; Susan Sarandon and Tim Robbins fell for each other while filming "Bull Durham"; Warren Beatty and Annette Bening became a duo after falling in love shooting "Bugsy"; Bette Davis and Gary Merrill became a duo after "All About Eve"; and Mary Steenburgen and Malcolm MacDowell married after "Time After Time."

BITS 'N' PIECES: Let's hope it's true! Farrah Fawcett clear of cancer! ... David Duchovny is also a super student. He went to Princeton, got his master's degree in English literature from Yale and was on his way to his Ph.D when he was bitten by the acting bug, and that ended that. ... George Clooney is clean-shaven again. I'm happy about that! ... Joaquin Phoenix is not his given name. On screen now in "We Own the Night," he was named at birth Joaquin Rafael Bottom. ... Britney, Paris, Lindsay — Once again. NOT HERE!

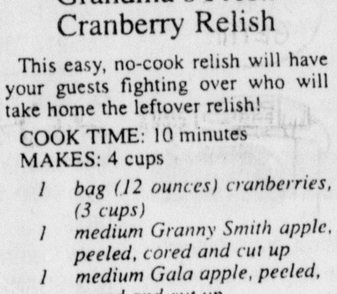
Fave Foods OF THE FAMOUS

by Steven Austin



Joe Spano

You know the amazingly versatile, Emmy-award-winning actor Joe Spano from his detective role in the groundbreaking TV series "Hill Street Blues," as well as a huge variety of other TV shows and major movies such as "Murder One," "NYPD Blue," "American Graffiti" and "Apollo 13." You can see him now on the CBS-TV hit series "NCIS."

Spano grew up in San Francisco and was on track to become a physician, but the acting bug bit him and he soon made a name for himself with The Wing, a local improv group. Among his numerous stage credits are "Romeo and Juliet," "Hamlet" and "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof." Spano proudly works with a variety of charitable organizations, including the Half the Sky Foundation, which builds preschools and creates infant-nurturing programs at orphanages in China. What type of cuisine best exemplifies your life?

"Well, growing up in the Italian section of San Francisco, it's natural that hearty Italian food was a big part of my upbringing. My life has been wonderfully varied and filled with the 'flavors and spices' that add to every single day. I experience Italian food as being celebratory, and I am thankful for what life has given me. A true celebration."

A co-star with a wild eating habit?

"On the set of NCIS, every day we shoot, Mark Harmon shows up with a metal container, like the kind you'd make milkshakes in, loaded with some type of weird green-colored concoction. I know it's a health drink, probably loaded with herbs, proteins and other things. But that color is something else. When we were doing "Hill Street Blues," we'd occasionally have a long lunch break and a bunch of us would leave the set and go to a nice French restaurant in Studio City. All I can say is that working in the afternoon was a bit challenging at times, since wine usually accompanied our meals!"

Favorite holiday season?

"Thanksgiving is my favorite, now that I am older. It seems pretty much free of the commercialism and guilt that plague Christmas, and the excess that comes with New Year's. I like Easter, too. I guess I like marking going into winter and coming out of it. We always had a capon instead of turkey when I was a kid. My uncle, who bartended at the Fior D'Italia, said it was the best. My aunt is a wonderful cook and always made the stuffing. I once asked her for the recipe, and she gave it to me over the phone. I still have the napkin I wrote it on."

Ever have to go on a special diet or routine for a role?

"For an episode of the classic TV series "Midnight Caller," I played a prisoner condemned to death. We shot it at Alcatraz, which had been permanently closed down. I recall that during production, I ate better than usual, and did lots of push-ups and chin-ups in my cell so I could look a bit more buff. Won an Emmy for that, so for all you aspiring actors, my advice is to do push-ups!"

audit, an annual independent financial audit, and annual report to the board, and an independent citizen's oversight committee. Just another reason to vote Yes on S.

As a long time resident of West Sacramento, I am not naive to the challenges our school district faces. Especially, because I attended many of the schools in such desperate need of support. However, I am also reassured by the direction of our newly elected school board members and newly appointed administration. I am finally seeing forward thinking and bar raising standards. It wasn't until this new administration that I ever received a timely return call from the district office. I happily accept this type of change.

Our children deserve more. Good schools are good for our community. I hope you will support West Sacramento Schools and vote Yes on Measure S.

The Bee was wrong

Honestly, was anyone really surprised that the Sacramento Bee would endorse the Measure S school bond? What I was surprised about, however, was that the endorsement was basically just a reiteration of the bond language that appears on the ballot. Nowhere in the editorial did I see the magic words, those that tell voters that this endeavor will actually educate the children of our community better.

The editorial did tell us, though, that "bond money would help achieve the vision for top-rate facilities in the district". Now, maybe I'm just confused, but I have always been under the impression that rigorous curriculum coupled with skilled, top-notch teachers, educate our children — not buildings.

Don't kid yourself. Should the bond pass, it will not be like an episode of Extreme Makeover. Sure, the schools in the far north section of the district will get some minor upgrades and some other crumbs thrown their way, but you won't see this nirvana they are promising spring forth — that would basically require flattening each school and starting over — and it's just not going to happen.

The verbiage that most struck me in the editorial was the comment that "this plan allows students to remain in their neighborhood schools longer, building on a sense of community as they stay with the same class, principal and teachers". The editorial provides no factual data to show that placing students in their own contained environments all over the city while cultivating a false sense of community, and then letting them all come together as one big group the first day of high school, will be beneficial to their overall well being/success.

There seems to be a leaning not only by our city, but also now by the school district, to compartmentalize our children. We are in dangerous territory folks. The editorial also states that "this will help prevent children from growing up too fast". Perhaps the author of this editorial would like us to just put our kids in nice tight little bubbles, heaven forbid they should actually have to experience any type of change that may aid them in their personal growth. Good grief, how did our parents manage making educational choices for us without the wise guidance of the Sacramento Bee?

It is not enough that the Bee consistently puts forth unbalanced reporting, it is now going to tell us at what pace our children should grow up. The Bee also needs to check its math, with the original $52 million bond, the $7 million of unused money from the modernization voters recently allowed the district to use, and the $75 million worth of Certificates of Participation they borrowed (of which the district has already used $60 million), the new high school is well over $100 million.

Nothing has changed with the Bee's endorsement of the bond. It's still full of sketchy language, it won't do all that it promises, and should it pass we will be paying for yet another 30 years debt that once again did not bring true equity throughout the district.

Watching WUSD

Apparently, there have been some "by invitation only" meetings about placing Westmore Oaks Elementary (or the new K-8 version of it) at the current RCHS facility after the new high school opens. Last week a meeting was held with more parents included that laid out just such a plan due to the fact that the Administration now realizes that 900 students will not fit of the WMO campus, which is what many of us in the community told them quite some time ago. Then it is confirmed in the Metro section of the Sacramento Bee this past Sunday.

The fate of the current RCHS facility has certainly seen a lot of scenarios over "possibilities" and "what if's" but this is not one I've ever even heard mentioned. Besides, if that happens than what happens to the high school Career and Technology programs that were suppose to stay at that facility? I continue to hear a lot and read a lot about 7th-8th grade career and technology programs but not that for the high school.

I find it sad that a lot of money and focus was spent this year on that of the elementary and junior high age students but nothing was given to our high school students who are very tired of hearing "we're waiting until we get into the new facility".

Well, what about the students at RCHS now? Especially our seniors? You've given them the impression that they don't matter and that the Administration and Board don't care about them, so why should they care about school? At several more recent school Board meetings I've asked about when will the Lower Northwest Interceptor (the sewer line) be held responsible for fixing the swimming pool and tennis courts at the current RCHS campus without getting any type of response or answer yet at the recent meeting regarding the WMO scenario, parents were told that the pool would be filled in "since it would be too political and time consuming" to make LNWI responsible for the damage. So much for caring about that part of our community that has enjoyed both the swimming pool and tennis courts all these years.

Also, what will happen to the Early College Prep School that was also suppose to be housed at the current RCHS facility? Will we just "give" the WMO facility over to the Charter school, which by the way did not qualify for the $300,000 grant that we, WUSD, loaned them until they received that grant and who knows when and if they will ever receive that grant?

Who contributes to what?

Well, it seems that maybe our Yolo County DA has tipped his hand again. Was the visit to the local farmer's property, the Silverbend Pumpkin Patch, apparently with guns being brought on to the property, for the sake of our building code enforcement, or something else? This move, along with the "cleansing" of our older neighborhood in Broderick of this so-called crime wave, sure makes one wonder.

The older area of West Sacramento apparently would be quite valuable if it was developed, so the lack of logical reasoning for the injunction makes it look fishy. It is no secret that there is much corruption in our federal and state governments, so it would not be much of a stretch to believe it also exists here in our local government these days. It is illegal for a public official to use his authority to deny people their civil rights, or to use their authority to help benefit say a friendly developer who may or may not have contributed to their campaign for election. Most everybody nowadays believes that campaign contributions are nothing but bribes. We can't get our elected officials anywhere to change the campaign financing laws to help keep the system clean. Gee, I wonder why?

We have to be ever vigilant and try and make sure the people's business comes first. As long as campaign contributions are allowed to be made I think we the people are going to get the short end of the stick. Look at the health care situation. Nothing is being done because big business doesn't want anything done. We need our district attorney to abide by his oath to uphold the Constitution of the United States and remember he works for all the people. It would be nice if the News-Ledger would print a page showing all of our elected officials and who were contributors to their campaigns. A little light on the subject is necessary at this point. Also, it would be nice to hear from our

Vote for Stu

I have had the great pleasure of working closely with Stu Greenfeld when he was Superintendent of WUSD. He was instrumental in reaching out to the business community and encouraging their involvement in supporting our schools.

His background serving as Assistant Superintendent of Public Instruction for the State Department of Education makes him uniquely qualified for the office of Yolo County Board of Education. But most importantly, I have witnessed first hand Stu's compassion for kids and his devotion to providing a quality education for all children.

He clearly has the experience to establish sound educational policy at the local, county and state levels of government. I wholeheartedly encourage the voters of West Sacramento to support Stu Greenfeld for the office of Yolo County Board of Education.

Bring us a golf course

I agree wholeheartedly with the sentiment expressed in the letter "Yarbrough will bring golf", from Phil Hinkel in the October 10 edition of the News-Ledger.

As chairperson of the West Sacramento Chamber of Commerce's annual golf tournament, it is embarrassing to have to hold the tournament out-of-town due to the lack of a local golf course. Compounding that embarrassment is the fact that a proposal has been on the table for a couple of years to bring a top quality public golf course to Southport with the new Yarbrough community.

Let's stop the delays and get West Sacramento moving in the right direction again. Let's build the new golf course at Yarbrough now.

Say 'Yes!' To S

The conversion to K-8 was a well thought-out, very public process. I know because I personally served on the K-8 Task Force, the WUSD Curriculum Committee, and the Architectural Committee for Bridgeway Island Elementary School. There have been numerous public forums and the budget and renovations for each respective school site has been available for the asking. The fact that some citizens chose not to be involved should not serve as the basis for allegation that none of the information was aired in pubic meetings.

Further, the research shows that K-8 is inherently better. That's why the K-8 Task Force recommended it. It minimizes disruptions which put education at risk. It has been shown that taking kids (on the eve of puberty) out of environments they have known since Kindergarten and then putting them with approximately 500 other kids per grade level that they don't know, where there is no one teacher responsible for success or failure doesn't promote optimal learning. Anyway, that is water under the bridge. This is now a K-8 district. The question is, are we going to provide the right equipment and infrastructure to our kids?

Past failings of the District should be laid at the feet of the past School Boards or past administrations, not on this one. The current administration has only been in place two years. They have experience in expanding a top-notch school district (Roseville). I have been amazed at the progress they have made in improving the District. Further, Measure S provides for independent audits and a citizen oversight committee.

Some think the District is and was "just fine." Anybody who believes that either doesn't know the facts or is deluded. A middle school rated 3 out of 10 doesn't cut it. The District is improving but is still sub-par. We need to keep the momentum going.

Measure S promotes equality between all schools and expands options for kids who may not be college bound. It also enhances security and provides additional assets for the whole community to enjoy. This won't cost much because the older bonds are being paid off, your property taxes will be lower (even with the new bond) than they were two years ago. And it is beyond dispute that a good school district raises property values.

The Status Quo is not acceptable. Please join me in voting Yes on Measure S.

Support "S"

As a parent of four and a school board member, I ask you to support our effort to bring high quality to the schools of our district by voting yes on the school bond. Our city has transformed itself over the years into a shinning example by putting visions into reality. But a city is only as good as its schools, and we are now positioned to do the same for our schools. Over the past few years, West Sac voters elected a new school board committed to change. This new board has brought on a new superintendent and administration leadership. A few months ago, the Sacramento Bee acknowledged that "good things are happening in West Sacramento Schools after more than a decade of instability and low academic performance." The Bee also noted that the new board is committed to reform, and has a new administrative team that works well together. In just the past year, we have accomplished a great deal, including:

Increasing teacher pay and benefits almost 12% over two years;

Approving the Early College Prep High School that opened this fall and will ultimately serve 630 6th through 12th graders who are expected to be 1st generation college goers, partnering with UC Davis and Sacramento City College;

Moving the district to K-8 schools which will allow 7th and 8th graders to remain in their neighborhood schools, building on a sense of community;

Working to ensure that all elementary schools have after school programs and working with the City to enhance after school services to our children;

Successfully applied for state QEIA funds to reduce class size at Elkhorn Village Elementary School from 32 to 24 in grades 4 through 6, and ultimately through 8th grade;

Successfully applied for over $400,000 in funding to expand our preschool programs; and

Began implementing a new information system that will provide parents with real-time on-line access to their children's grades and attendance information.

We now need the community's support to continue this incredible momentum. With the passage of the school bond, the district will continue to take vital steps to bring excellence in education to West Sacramento, including constructing science labs, computer labs, library-multimedia centers and gyms in permanent structures at the elementary schools and to ensure our older schools are up to the same standards as our newer schools, enhancing our career technical education program, and improving school safety thru a district-wide communication system that will connect to parents, police and fire departments.

The future of our children's schools is now in your hands. Our school children have only one chance to obtain the educational foundation they need to be productive members of our society. As the Sacramento Bee said last Thursday, "voters should turn out in force to support" Measure S.
MATT STEGMAN

Measure S = Success

For all the success we have achieved over the last few years, West Sacramento still does not have a first class school system to educate our children. This concern was evidenced in the last two School Board elections which resulted in the community electing an entirely new Board with a mandate to lead our schools in a new dynamic direction.

Measure S provides the resources necessary for the new Board and the new administration to achieve the public mandate and take our schools to the next level of performance—with the promise of improved educational outcomes, improved student safety and reducing an excessive district wide dropout rate.

It is often easy to lose sight of the big picture as the various components of the ballot measure are debated, however, in this election we cannot afford to make that mistake. Measure S should not be viewed through the lens of perceived past District failures, nor should its various provisions be singled out and criticized without considering the entire proposal.

Measure S should be viewed for what it is—the first comprehensive concrete district-wide educational plan for our children to be proposed in over 20 years. If we, as a community, want the best for our kids then Measure S = Success!

Please join me in supporting Measure S on November 6.

"S" means progress

On behalf of the Sacramento River Cats Baseball Club, I want to salute the supporters and volunteers of the "Say Yes to West Sacramento Schools – Yes on Measure S campaign".

We are humbled that Raley Field has served as a symbol of progress and optimism about West Sacramento's future. But we know that a community is more than a baseball park, new homes and more places to shop. It is about the future and the leaders that we are building.

An excellent school system builds confidence in who we are and where we are going as a community. The confidence garnered by a community that believes in its youth and proves it by investing in them brings a return of confidence and investment from the business community. It attracts jobs because employees of companies will want live where their children can go to great schools and leave their household ready to take on the world.

We believe the school improvements in Measure S will be the most significant accomplishments in West Sacramento in years. That's because Measure S will bring the older schools neighboring Raley Field, like Elkhorn, Golden State, Bryte and Alyce Norman, up to the same facility and technological standards as brand new schools giving all the children in the West Sacramento community the same opportunity to prosper.

We wish Measure S backers the best of luck and urge the people of West Sacramento to consider supporting the effort as well.

VETERANS ★ POST ★

Veterans Day

I learned the other day that my next-door neighbor was a POW in Korea more than 50 years ago. I had no idea, because he never said. It only came up because he was on the way to a doctor's appointment, still being treated after all these years for the lingering effects of his confinement.

I wonder how many there are like him ... veterans with extraordinary experiences behind them, quietly going about their lives.

This year I hope we all make an effort to attend at least one Veterans Day event. There are thousands to choose from.

All across the country, celebrations and observances are recognized by the Secretary of Veterans Affairs as especially befitting Veterans Day tributes. Search the VA site (www.va.gov) for a link to Veterans Day regional sites. You'll find a list of contacts for events all over the country.

If you live in the Washington, D.C., area, you're near one of the nation's biggest Veterans Day events: the three-day 10th Annual Conference presented by the American Veterans Center Nov. 8-10 (see www.americanveteranscenter.org).

If you're in New England, you're not far from what will likely be the largest flag display ever seen. The Healing Fields Project will have 26,000 flags flown along I-95 through Maine to New Hampshire.

If in doubt about the times and locations of Veterans Day events in your area, do an online search to see what's going on. The important thing is to be there as we honor and are honored for our service. Whether we were infantry, mess hall cooks, nurses and doctors, MOH recipients, fighter pilots, postal clerks, mechanics, or, like my neighbor, a former POW thankfully returned home — we all served.

Support the K-9s

A spaghetti feed fundraiser is planned for 6 p.m. on Sat., Nov. 10, at the ILWU Hall, 600 4th Street, in support of the "K-9 Association," a nonprofit organization benefiting police dog programs. As members of the community who have always supported our schools, we feel as many do that the language in "Measure S" is too vague. "Measure S" promises a lot but guarantees nothing. This administration has a record of mismanaging the dollars we have already given them. Why should we as reasonable people, give them more money?

As past City Council Members, Mayors, W.U.S.D. Administrators, W.U.S.D. Board Members, City Planning Commissioners, Parents, Teachers and Community Members, we urge you to VOTE NO ON MEASURE S.
